Most Americans Think the Growth of Social Security Spending Should Not Be Cut to Reduce the Deficit

Do you think cutting the growth of spending on Social Security benefits should or should not be a main part of any government approach to the deficit? (Percent “Should not”)

Source: IWPR/Rockefeller Survey of Economic Security (November 2010), N=2,718.